providing faith-based counselling

June 27, 2017

Dear friends and community partners,

The Caring Place is hosting a 150th Canada celebration event by receiving grants from Canadian Heritage and the City of Regina.

The Caring Place is a non-profit charity that provides professional mental health counselling to all members of the community, based on ability to pay.

On Saturday, September, 2nd, 2017 we are hosting a FREE street fair event. It is called the Connect Street Fair » "Recasting Reconciliation & Exploring Diversity through Culture and Art". Our location is nestled in the heart of the Cathedral area and we want to showcase not only the area but the community in Regina. We are estimating 3,000 people to attend this event on 2100 block Robinson Street.

This one of a kind project creates a platform for courage and a means for expression through various art forms. Art and culture hold the ability to break down visible and invisible walls of pain and loneliness while providing a means to release traumas of the past and create community dialogue about a new hopeful future. The stories told through art, dance, play, music, and theatre expression and developed as part of the community fair will provide opportunity for all members of the community to interact with the stories and to grow in their own understanding of belonging and unity.

The Street Fair is for everyone to attend, Entertainment will be provided throughout the day as well as various interactive activities.

Can we count on your support with a cash donation or a gift in kind? These gifts will help spread the message that loneliness grief, depression & addictions don't need to be alone. We are here to listen, understand and to help.

Please contact us as we are happy to answer any questions, discuss, or provide any information you need.

Sincerely yours,

Vanessa Kijkowski for
